Art

Word Hunt

Read the paragraphs below. Look for words that come from French.

We can learn a lot about the past from art. Records of earlier lives come to us through sculpture, paintings, and written descriptions. The arts are a window into the picturesque country living in rural England and the elegance of wealthy European royalty.

Such paintings might show us the noisy fun of a town festival. In the painting we can see fancy treats, a colorful carousel, people on stilts, acrobats masquerading as clowns, and a menagerie of exotic animals. There are also villagers with expressions of amazement on their faces. Looking at such a scene, we can almost hear the laughter and music. We can also share the joy of children as they receive their souvenirs.

Other paintings reveal the formality of dating and courtship in high society. Marriages were arranged by two families. Visits between the young fiancé and fiancée were planned. A painting of this type of visit might also include a chaperone, who was often present during these visits because his or her expertise in such matters was trusted.

Elsewhere in these same mansions, quite a different atmosphere could also be found. Many paintings exist that show us what life was like in the kitchens of these estates. They depict teams of bustling cooks shouting to one another over the clang of pots and pans. There are wood stoves roaring. Counters are heaped with vegetables, bread, fish, and roast duck, and the cooks are feverishly stirring sauces for what promises to be a gourmet feast.

Such paintings give us a detailed picture of times very different from today. Through these paintings, we can begin to understand the lives of people we never met.
